

Leadership Development Mentoring

Boost your leadership ability

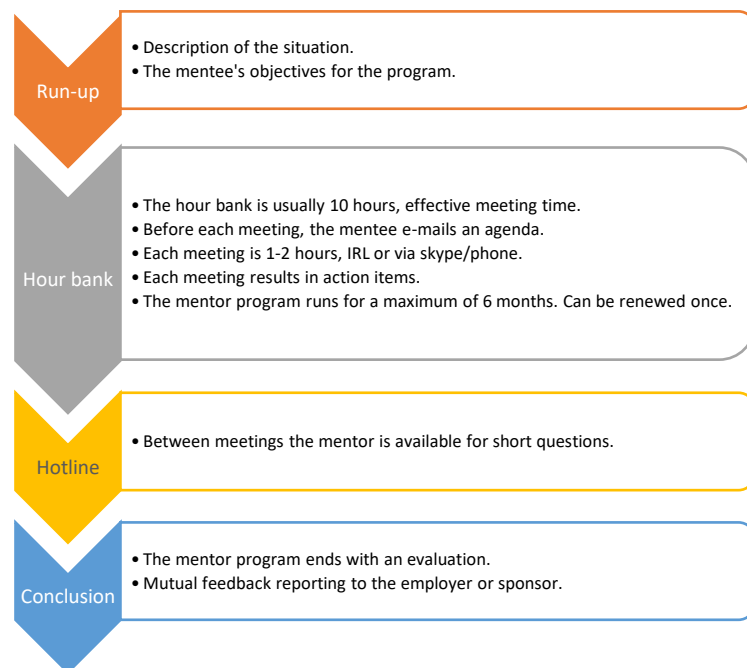

This program is designed for managers and leaders at all levels, including project managers and others who lead without direct reports.

The mentoring program enables leaders to reflect upon and process new situations, problems and challenges with an external experienced leader. The mentor doesn't take over the responsibility, but in a series of systematic conversations the mentee is given the opportunity to analyze her or his situation from additional perspectives, clarify choices and priorities, and act and communicate more efficiently.

The program consists of a series of individual meetings, with time to practice new behaviors between the meetings. For this purpose, an hour bank is established, which will be counted down as the hours are used for physical meetings or longer telephone encounters. Shorter telephone or email contacts, questions and advice ("Hotline") can take place without any deductions being made from the time bank. Before each meeting, the mentee sends an agenda with questions and discussion points to the mentor.

Objective

At the end of program the mentee will be clear in her or his actions, will manage business situations effectively, and will achieve her or his goals.
